Club Celebrates Tenth Anniversary With Function at the Raleigh Hotel.

430 MEMBERS ENROLLED FROM 85 INSTITUTIONS

Addresses Delivered by Dr. Katherine Bement Davis of New

The tenth birthday anniversary of the College Women's Club of Washington was elebrated with a banquet at the Raleigh Hotel last night, Miss Emma Harper furner, who was chiefly responsible for the formation of this organization, is president for the first time this year and cted as toastmistress at the birthday

The organization now has 430 members epresenting eighty-five colleges and universities and every state in the Union. Dr. Katherine Bement Davis, commisbr. Katherine Bement Davis, commissioner of corrections, New York, who is chairman of the commission on parole and head of the Bedford Reformatory for Girls, was the principal speaker. She advised the banqueters of their duty to see themselves not as individuals, but as members of a social group, and also of their duty to bring this group to the highest plane. As educated women who have enjoyed superior advantages, she said, it is their province to direct other women to a broader realization of life and perform real social service.

Tribute to Thomas M. Osborne.

She paid a high tribute to Thomas M. Osborne, saying that he had organized a democratic form of government within the walls of Sing Sing, where the problem was peculiar, because the inmates had failed to adjust themselves to society. While she maintained that violators of the law should be made self-directing, she pointed out that excaved in the world, be carbeed and rights of others. Dr. Davis said of shorne was condemned by the outside world for carrying his ideas of democracy behind prison bars, and that he had been prevented from accomplishing his ideal by this criticism. She said he wanted the men behind the bars to know that they had a place in the world, and sought to give the good in them a chance for expression, a project, she said, which can scarcely be accomplished by punishment and solitary confinience in the world, and sought to give the good in them a chance for expression, a project, she said, which can scarcely be accomplished by punishment and solitary confinience ment of the proposed supplies to be punishment and solitary confinience ment of the proposed supplies to cioner of corrections, New York, who is chairman of the commission on parole Beckworth, Myra H. ## Experience With the Wayward.

Telling of her experiences in handing wayward and incorrigible girls, Dr. Davis said when she took charge at the New Bedford reformatory there was talk of adopting rules. She said there should be no rules, for what would fit one case would not fit an-other, since there were various grades and degrees of moral turpitude. She cited, as an example, that there was discussion of a rule prohibiting use of pens and paper so that the girls could not write notes. Dr. Davis recalled that when she was a schoolgirl she often wrote notes in school to a boy who has since become a preacher of national reputation, and she did herealf the credit of saving she believed discussion of a rule prohibiting use of versity always to stand by their school herself "a fairly responsible member Dr. Noble P. Barnes of the faculty of the community."
